I can spell my name!!^ Mommy and I have been working on this for a while now, so when she picked me up from school on Monday (01/25/10) I thought I would surprise her.^ We went through the same routine of Mommy asking me what I did at school that day.^ I told her I had snack, played break the ice and spelled my name.^ Mommy was so excited.^ Then she asked me how to spell it...So, there I was, in my car seat while Mommy was driving me home from school and I said, "A and E and R and I then S!"^ Mommy was so proud!^ She had to stop the car and turn around to give me a hug!^ Of course, I was proud too and had a big smile on my face.^ We work on it each day!^ It's so much fun.^ Sometimes I get the R and the I mixed up, but Mommy helps me fix it.

Today when Mommy picked me up from school I told her I had Popcorn for a snack!^ That was yummy!^ Then every object I saw, I would tell Mommy what letter it started with.^ Like the school bus we passed...I said, "School bus starts with S!"^ Then I saw your house and I told Mommy that house starts with H, then boy starts with B, then Mommy asked me what letter girl starts with...I was a little confused and said H, but then Mommy asked me what sound H makes and I told her hhhhh and she asked me if that sounded like girl, go or green...I said no...then said G!^ I can't wait until Daddy gets home from work so that I can tell him!!^
