

Yay!

Contributed by Aeris
Saturday, 30 January 2010

Mommy and Daddy finally took me to their doctor.Â They seem to be happy with that because he is not afraid to run tests in order to figure out what is going on with my tummy.Â Mommy and Daddy said they don't want to just guess what is wrong, they want to know.Â They figure running a few tests will not hurt me, so why not go ahead and do it to be more conclusive in a diagnosis.Â Hopefully it's something easy to fix.Â Their doctor wants Mommy and Daddy to make an appointment with a pediatric gastroenterologist.Â He said the best bet would be to go to one that is located at one of the children's hospitals because they have access to more kid friendly devices and that will most likely make it less traumatic on me.Â Unfortunately, they're all booked up for a couple of weeks, so in the mean time my new doctor is running all of the tests that he can.Â That way we don't have to waste time on these tests once we get in to see the specialist.Â I hope we figure out what is wrong with my tummy soon.